General Description of the Purkeville Hydropathic Institute.

The main building is three stories high, standing back from the street about one hundred test, with a semicircular grass plot in front, and contains thirty to forty rooms.

The grounds around the house are tastefully laid out with walks and planted with trees, shrubs, &c. On the left of the entrance to those grounds is a cottage containing four rooms, used by male patients as a bathing house, with every convenience for "packing," bathing, &c.; on the right of the entrance, about two hundred feet distant, stands a similar cottage, used by the ladies for similar purposes.

purposes.

In the rest of the Institute, at the distance of one hundred feet, are three other cottages, some eighty feet apart. One of these is the laundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as carried off by drains under ground.

FIR WATER WORKS

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a hill, surmounted by a large cedar reservoir containing five hundred bearels, brought from a never-failing spring of purie coil water in the side of the hill, by "a hydraulic ram," a self-acting machine of cast iron, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the opring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoirs to a fountain in the water works yard; surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the waterworks is a circular room, containing the douche both, which is a stream falling from a height of about thirty feet, and can be varied in size from half an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. Adjoining the douche room is a dressing room, with marble tables, &c.; the rising douche (for the cure of piles, &c.) is one of the most complete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

There are many other appliances, which can be better understood by a personal examination.

customs, religion, literature, and demestic habits of the people of those immense empires.

The embellishments are about two hundred, and of the mode of agriculture, commercial pursuits, arts, &c. They are accurate, and each one has been made expressly for comprising the most striking and remarkable events of the Revolution, the French war, the Tripolitan war, the Indian war, the Second war with Great Britain; and the Mexican war, with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $2.50 per volume. Orders respectfully solicited.

SEARS PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Plan—The plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining responsible tien as agents, who are well known in their own counties, owns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little in sending $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the whole sale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to engage in the sale of the above volumes; and all postmasters, clergymen, book pediars, and newspaper agents, are respectfully requested to act as our agents. A handsom remuneration allowed to all who engage in their sale. For particulars address, post paid,

To publishers of newspapers throughout the United States:

To the Editors of the American Telegraph, GENTLEMEN: As a member of the Whig ranks

the next Presidency. The country requires repose from the incessant din of party strife, and the people have other things to think of besides making Presidents, and something else to do besides urging the pretensions of Presidential aspirants

It is but just, however, to our present worthy Chief Magistrate, to state, that his Administration has received the unqualified approval of the Whigs of Virginia; and although they will cheerfully support the nominee of a National Convention, the nomination of no one by that body would give them higher gratification than that of Millard Fillmore. The death of the lamented Taylor brought him most unexpectedly to the Presidential Chair, at the most register and important origin that has arisen since the foundation of the Government. Distunion and civil war stared us in the face. Every It is but just, however, to our present worthy union and civil war stared us in the face. Every patriot trembled for the integrity of the Union nd the safety of the Government. Although some questioned the capacity and qualifications of Mr. Fillmore for the high and responsible trust which he was so suddenly called on to assume; yet, not having been elected to that office by the people, it was feared that he could not command their confidence in a sufficient degree, to steer the ship of state through the breakers which beset it, without dissatisfaction and mutiny.

These fears, however, have so far proved to be vain, and Mr. Fillmore has not only shown himself in every way equal to his task, but the people—the discreet and patriotic of both po-litical parties—have stood by and sustained him in the discharge of his arduous duties.

He has so "demeaned himself in his high office," that even the most captions of his po-litical opponents can really find nothing in his Administration to cavil at or to condemn. Although a northern man, he has stood by the Constitution and administered the Government Constitution and administered the Government with strict impartiality, for the benefit of the South as well as the North, the East and the West, and has shown himself an American in heart and feeling. He is not one of those whose patriotism is circumscribed by the narrow confines of a particular State or section of the Union; but with the lofty and expanded views and feelings of a noble and cultivated intellect, and a true patriot, he looks to the good of the whole Confederacy, and likes to see every sec-tion of it free, happy, and prosperous. He has stood by the union of the States as the sheetanchor of our political hopes and fortunes, and with unshaken firmness, through the raging of the storm and the rocking of the battlements, has endeavored to preserve it. Such a man is worthy of the confidence of the people, and de-serves to be reinstated by the popular suffrage in the office which he has so impartially and ably filled. Such, we have not a doubt, is the desire of the Whigs of Virginia.

With Millard Fillmore as their candidate for With Millard Fillmore as their candidate for President, and Alex. H. H. Stuart, the able Secretary of the Interior, for Vice President, I cannot permit myself to doubt the success of the ticket. Mr. Stuart I consider eminently fitted for the post. His moral and virtuous course of life—his pure and unsullied honor—his lofty patriotism—and the devotion to the Union which he has evinced—furnish an ample guarantee that he would discharge the duties of the office with credit to himself and advantage the office with credit to himself and advantage to his country. The Whigs of Virginia are looking to the name of Mr. Stuart, in connexion with the Vice Presidency, with no ordinary degree of interest. I have merely thrown out a few hints as it regards the feelings and wishes of the Whigs of Virginia. I have no doubt that the ticket which I have mentioned would be their first choice; yet, they will cordially sustain the nomination of a Whig national convention.

LYNCHBURG, July 11, 1851. Greatness besidelltself. To the Editors of the American Telegraph.

GENTLEMEN: The communication on the outde of the Telegraph on Monday last, headed "Peping behind the Scenes," gives rise to a conjecture as to who the eminent Cabinet Minister referred to can be. I ask, can it be the gentleman who was very poor once himself, so poor that he could not get trusted for a pair of boots, and who, had it not been for the heavy donations of his infatuated wealthy friends, could not now get trusted for any thing? How often it occurs that persons rising from obscurity and poverty to greatness, in the world's estimation, will put on ridiculous airs, and forget what they have been as well as what they really are.

Suppose the Cabinet Minister in question had said to the lady who called on him at his residence, instead of his Department, "Madam, my rule is to attend to all business matters at the Department; but as you say my messenger has treated you uncivilly, for several days in succession, and has refused to let you see me at my office, and also to take your letters to me, I will waive my rule on this occasion and read the letters you have brought with pleasure. Madam, we have just dined, but if you will take some cake and wine, I will order those refreshments with pleasure. We are but servants of the people, madam. You are one of the sover-I fear I will not be able, at present, to eigns. give your husband employment, for the places are all filled, but I will keep his case in remembrance, as you say he is a good Whig, is out of employment, and is blest with as many children as were vouchsafed to John Rodgers of old. Madam, you will always find the latch-string of our door out. I wish you good-day."

Query: Wouldn't Sam Houston, if President even, so treat a well-behaved, well-dressed married lady? Wouldn't Stephen A. Douglas? Wouldn't John Y. Mason? Wouldn't almost any gentleman high in station, who justly appreciated himself and the world generally ADVERTISE .- A business that is worth fol-ADVERTISE.—A business that is worth fol-lowing is worthy of being advertised, and next to having one's stock covered by insurance, we believe the most important step is to advertise it to the world. There is nothing like keeping one's trade before the public, or one's name in such a prominent position that it may not be forgotten. A simple card in a single paper is better than none at all; for the name and the trade become associated in the mind, and the want of an article suggests at once the name of the trader.—N. Y. Sun.
